Henry Manuel and Agnes Delaney

Name	Henry MANUEL
Birth	abt 1760
Death
Burial
Occupation
Father	Ida. Manuel b 2 Mar 1740 with Sterling Scot (his parents John Manuel
Mother	Muiravonside, Dist 486 & Jean Smith)
Other spouses	OPR 1699 Testamentor Inventory 1608

Misc. Notes

The Manuals originally came from Sterlingshire, Scotland. The name comes from the priory of Manuel or Emmanuel in the parish of Muiravonside, founded in the 1100s for women of rank. Manuel as a family name appeared by 1296.

A Manual may have been the first of our ancestors to arrive in America. Three Manuel immigrants from Britain are mentioned in early records. All came to VA in the 1600s. Robert Manuel age 25, an indentured servant, arrived in 1621 on the Charles. Because dysentery, malaria and the Indian massacre of 1622 decimated the population a census was taken in 1624-25. Robert Manuel was listed as a servant of the Jordan family at Jordan's Journey in Charles City County. The other two Manuals are John who arrived before 1670 and Franc before 1672.

A Manual, perhaps our ancestor, served with Virginia troops from 1742 to 1749 guarding Virginia's frontier in one of the French and Indian wars.

By 1790 our Manual family had settled across the border in Stokes County, NC. Adalie's grandfather was probably Wm. Manuel (?) of Stokes County, a son or nephew of Philoman Manuel. Adalie's father, George Manual, was born the year George Washington left office and was probably named after him. About 1824 he married Nellie, who was born in NC about 1807, and by 1830 had moved to Montgomery County, NC.

Adalie, the oldest of 14 children, was born Dec 1, 1825. By 1834 the family had moved to what is now Webster Co., MS where they were neighbors of the Knights. Adalie married Thomas Knight about 1839 and her sister, Lucy, married Thomas's half brother, Edward. A third sister married their nephew, John Fielding. Manuals and the three Knights moved to texas near Rusk in 1851. Left a widow with 10 children in 1857 Adalie married George Howard the following year. By 1870 the Howards had moved to Grimes Co., near Navasota. Adalie died Oct 10, 1885 and is buried in the Zion cemetery at Iola.[1]

A new member will receive all four issues of the Pioneer for the year.

Members have free access to the inquiry section of the periodical.

Please send your membership renewal check to Mrs. Sue Thompson by January 15, 1991. If your renewal is received after January 15, your Pioneer will be delayed until the next bulk mailing.

Army in Pennsylvania near Germantown and he was then placed under the command of Colo Crawford and was then employed in Scouting during which time this applicant in the woods found about three Dozen Buckets and after having procured help carried them to camp this applicant expected to receive pay for his prize but did not obtain any, he was with the Army until about the 10th of October following and was out on that campaign before he returned home three Months or more he was dismissed without any written discharge

After that Campaign in the winter 1777 1778 he again Entered the service under Capt Hill and Marched to Guard the prisoners taken at the surrender of General Burgoine they met the prisoners and Marched them to Albemarle Barracks and there Guarded them from December til April and was in service on that Campaign four Months or more.

he understood the prize money amounted to twenty four hundred pounds a man but this applicant never received any of his share
Colo. Oliver Dick commanded at that place
~~he served at the time as an orderly sergeant~~
On that campaign he served from June till
September three months nearly all the white

Colo Dick in reconnoitering the British fleet he was hailed by a British soldier and then squatted down and shot the soldier which brot on a skirmish in which 12 or 15 prisoners and 100 sheep were taken

Hon. Ewin L. Davis
House of Representatives
Washington, D. C.

S. 2527

My dear Mr. Davis:

In reply to your letter of April 7, 1930, I have the honor to advise you that this bureau is unable to furnish the history of a soldier of the Revolution unless a claim for pension or bounty land has been made to the United States on account of his services.

A careful search of the records fails to show such a claim on file on account of the services of John Rhea, or of Colonel John Anderson who served with the Virginia or North Carolina troops.

From the papers in the Revolutionary War pension claim S. 2527, it appears that Benjamin Delaney or Dulany, was born in November 1755 in Fauquier County, Virginia.

While residing in Culpeper County, Virginia, he enlisted and served with the Virginia troops as follows:

From sometime in March 1777, three months in Captain James Pendleton's Company in Colonel James Barbour's Regiment; from July 25, 1777, three months in Captain Henry Hill's Company, Colonel Crawford's Regiment; three months, no dates given, under Captains Basey, Zimmerman, Duncan and Greene, and Major Waugh; in 1777 and 1778 four months in Captain Hill's Company; in 1779 or 1780, three months in Captain Robert Pollard's Company and was in an engagement at Petersburgh; from June, year not given, three months in Captain Woodford's Company in Colonel Alexander Dick's Regiment; nine months, exact dates not given, in Captain Mansfield's Company in Colonel Pendleton's Regiment and was in the Siege of Yorktown. He stated that he served as orderly sergeant but did not designate the periods in which he served as such.

Wars

In 1803 he moved from Culpeper County, Virginia, to Sullivan County, Tennessee, of which place he was a resident when he was allowed pension on his application executed February 19, 1833.

He died August 18, 1839.

He left no widow but four children survived him, namely:

Thomasin E.
Lewis B.
Jurietta, wife of Elijah W. Headrick
Drusilla Edwards.

There are no other data on file as to his family.

Very truly yours,

EARL D. CHURCH
Commissioner.

PREFACE

In 1710 Swiss and German Mennonites established settlements on the Pequea Creek in the interior regions of Chester County, Pennsylvania. These early Mennonites, the first settlers in this region, were not alone for very long; French Hugenots established their settlements in the Pequea Valley in 1711. English Quakers soon followed and began to purchase and clear land in the Salisbury Township region, while the Scotch-Irish settled on tracts of land in townships in the far northwest and southern portions of the county. In 1718 several Welsh families migrated to Caernarfon Township.

The influx of these various immigrant groups—Germans, Scotch-Irish, and English—into this region continued through the next decade and was sufficient to warrant the creation of a new county by 1729 which was given the name Lancaster. It was the fourth county established in the province of Pennsylvania.

The early churches of Lancaster County show that while the predominate group was German, the county was rich in ethnic diversity and the county's residents were practicing an array of religious beliefs. The early denominations in the county included: Mennonite, Amish Mennonite, German Baptist Brethern, Quaker, Anglican or Episcopalian, Catholic, Lutheran, German Reformed, Moravian, Presbyterian, Methodist, and Seventh Day Baptist.

This volume, tenth in a series of Pennsylvania Births, has been prepared as an aid for genealogical research in the extant records of those early Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, churches. A variety of sources were used for this compilation, including published works, manuscripts both handwritten and typed, original records and copies of original records found on microfilm. Names and dates for all records were copied verbatim. No attempt was made to correct variant spellings of surnames. Some birth/baptismal records for German congregations were copied from English translations and other translations are my own. In fact, this particular volume includes births found in a previously untranslated register for the Moravian Church at Lititz.

Apparent variations within this text occur simply because early Lancaster County church records do not adhere to a consistent form. Most ministers recorded the date of birth, in which case that is the date provided here. But in other records the recorded date was the day the infant was baptized. Those dates have been entered here with the notation "bp." Quakers recorded dates of birth only, written in numeric form, that is, July 4, 1776, was written as "7mo 4 1776" or "4 7mo 1776."

Original records for several churches show the child's baptismal date and age in lieu of a date of birth. In those instance a date of birth is calculated here based on the child's age, for example, "ca Jul 1766."

The format used for each birth record should be fairly obvious. Following the boldface surname, the first name listed is the child's given name. A notation "bp" following the child's name, as noted above, signifies that the date following is the date of baptism. Names following the date of birth or baptism are those of the infant's father and mother. The number in the extreme right column identifies the church record where that birth record can be found—as numbered at the conclusion of this Preface. A name in parentheses following the mother's maiden name is her unmarried surname. Note, however, that not every maiden name is placed in parentheses. Several pastors entered both the father's and the mother's full names in the record, in which case the mother's name is entered here as found. A sample entry including the above listed possibilities might read:

Infant		Date of Birth or Baptism	Father	Mother	Record
Henry
William		13 Dec 1755	John	Maria Magdalena	6
Joseph	bp	3 Jul 1763	William	Anna (Wood)	7
Anna Catharina		10 Oct 1770	Johannes	Barbara Frey	8

Several question marks and other notations appear in the text. Most of the bracketed question marks indicate illegible text. In some cases the question marks and other notations appear in the typed or handwritten translations or in copies of the original document, placed there by the transcriber or translator to indicate a questionable transcription of difficult-to-read entries. Other bracketed references designate a record copied as found, though seemingly incorrect.

Other notations and abbreviations found in the original records include the designation for twin, shortened here to "tw," "ill" for illegitimate, and "dec'd" for deceased. Although researchers may find evidence for the birth of twins in some of these records beyond those identified by "tw," the twin designation appears throughout this text only when found as such in the source record.

Family historians working with this text will find a significant number of duplicate entries, that is, information on infants that was recorded twice. For example, genealogists researching the Heyl family will find double birth records for three children of Jacob Heyl—one set was recorded in the register of the Muddy Creek Lutheran Church and the other in the register of the Brickerville or Warwick Lutheran congregation in Elizabeth Township. Both of these registers were opened by Rev. John Casper Stoever. According to Charles Glatfelter, when Stoever opened the Warwick or Brickerville register in 1742, he entered into the register earlier baptisms some of which were recorded in the Muddy Creek register. Note, however, that not all of the duplicate entries can be attributed to Rev. Stoever—double entries can also be found for infants baptized by Rev. John Waldschmidt.

Another section of this book, labeled "miscellaneous," contains birth records for persons whose surname was unknown.

Baptismal entries for adult women recorded in some church registers identified them by their married name, not their birth or maiden name. Given the format of Pennsylvania Births, wherein children are linked to a surname by birth rather than by marriage, listing birth records for these women in the main body of the text would be misleading. For example, if Anna Maria Boeshaar, wife of John Boeshaar, baptized 31 December 1753, were listed in the main text, she would be entered as follows:

Infant		Date of Birth	Father	Mother	Record
Boeshaar
Anna Maria	bp	31 Dec 1753	not given	not given	24

Seeing this entry, someone working on the Boeshaar family would naturally assume that this Anna Maria, baptized 31 December 1753, was the daughter of an unidentified father with the surname Boeshaar.

The researcher might further assume that this Anna Maria was a member of the Boeshaar family by birth when, in fact, she is a Boeshaar by marriage—that is, not a Boeshaar blood relative. For proper entry in the main text, her surname at birth would have to be known even though her parents' first names might be unknown. A separate section following the main text lists the married women for whom these kinds of records have been found, but it must be remembered that the linkeage for women listed in this section is to the husband, not the parents.

Four additional elements of critcal concern to genealogical reseachers must be considered:

First, this book is not offered under the pretense of being a "complete" Lancaster County birth record; it is complete only to the extent that records were available for research in 1996. Records are missing, or perhaps were never kept, for some Lancaster County churches. Various county histories, for example, show that ten Presbyterian churches were located in Lancaster County prior to 1800. No extant baptismal records for these ten congregations were found. Likewise, two Catholic congregations were established in Lancaster County, but the only records found were a partial register for St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church in the city of Lancaster. Genealogists must also note that several of the early denominations in Lancaster County, namely the Mennonites, the Amish Mennonites, and the German Baptist Brethern, had no tradition of maintaining church records.

Second, Lancaster County boundaries have changed significantly since the county was established in 1729. Portions of Lancacaster County situated west of the Susquehanna River became part of York and Cumberland counties in 1749 and 1750 respectively. Other divisions or separations took place in 1752, 1772, 1785, and 1813 when the counties of Berks, Northumberland, Dauphin, and Lebanon were formed. Researchers must remember that the church, meeting, and pastoral records used for this compilation are those records found within Lancaster County boundaries as they exist in 1996.

Third, the inclusion of birth and/or baptismal information in this compilation does not necessarily mean the infants were born in Lancaster County or that their families even lived there. For example, all of the early births recorded in the St. James Protestant Episcopal Church register were for children born in either York or Cumberland counties, and most of the infants named in the personal register of Rev. Cuthberthson were born and baptized elsewhere.

Fourth, it is important to keep in mind this book is not intended as a substitute source for Lancaster County church, meeting, and pastoral records; rather, it is intended to facilitate access to those records. Family historians who are able to determine that one or several of their ancestors were born in Lancaster County should consult the original record or a transcription of that record to verify information obtained from this text and to gather any additional information.

Finally, I would like to thank the Moravian Church in Lititz for their permission to access information from the early registers of the congregation.

History of Wade Chapel Cemetery

Wade Chapel Cemetery had its beginning in 1854 when Nancy Herren Wade, who was born in 1805, was buried in the churchyard of Wade Chapel, a Methodist church located in the northeast part of what is now the cemetery. She was the wife of James (Jimmie) Wade, Methodist circuit rider, who held services at the church. It is not known when the church was built but it was destroyed by fire, date also unknown.

The second grave in the churchyard was that of Allen Newton Bailey, who was born in 1830 and who died 12 days after the death of Nancy Herren Wade. A travelers' baby was the next burial there, also in 1854. The travelers went on their way after the child was laid to rest, and though the name has apparently been lost, the cemetery association has recently placed a marker at the grave. The fourth person buried in the churchyard was Tavner Rucker, who died in 1855. He was born in Ireland in 1787. These four graves are near the north boundary of the original cemetery. James (Jimmie) Wade, the circuit rider, who was living in Arkansas at the time of his death, was buried in that state but his body was later removed to Wade Chapel Cemetery. He was born in 1799 and died in 1880.

Several of the early graves in the burial ground had covers built over them as protection, since there was no stock law at the time. These coverings were made of flat sandstones and seven of them are still in place. A sandstone wall was built to enclose one group of graves to protect them, but later the wall was removed. Another old grave is covered with a sandstone slab. A few older residents in the community remember a rail fence that enclosed, or partially enclosed, the graveyard.

Wade Chapel Churchyard contained approximately one acre of land. Apparently, there is no record as to the year that the plot was obtained from the landowner or why that site was chosen for the church. Records do show, however, that the 40-acre tract, of which the churchyard, was a part, was owned by C. F. Dryden from 1839, when he bought it for $1.25 per acre, until 1857, when he sold it to D. W. Burford. The deed conveying the land to D. W. Burford made mention of a portion at the west edge of the tract, the portion measuring 11 poles by 14½ poles. This information, on file in the Recorder's Office, indicates that C. F. Dryden gave or sold the land for the churchyard.

In years past, Wade Chapel Cemetery was frequently referred to as the "Britain Graveyard". This was because many persons in the community assumed that the plot had been given by George W. Britain, who had owned the adjoining tract, or by Mark Britain, a later owner. Records show that George W. Britain did not acquire the property until 1871, when the land was conveyed to him by George P. Roberts of Farmington, Connecticut, "saving and excepting" a portion measuring 11 poles by 14½ poles. According to the description, this was the same portion of land mentioned in the deed made by C. F. Dryden in 1857.

Little information is available on the location of the early-day road or roads that led to Wade Chapel and the one-acre burial ground. It is known, however, that at one time a roadway ran from the original cemetery plot, eastward through the timber. This road, which was on private property, was later closed to vehicles, but people who walked to the cemetery continued to use it for several years. For their convenience, a wooden stile was built over the wire fence at the east edge of the yard, near the old roadway.

October 8, 1885, was the date of the first meeting held by those who "were interested in the grave yard known by name of Wade Chapel". Minutes of this meeting were found in an old day-book that had belonged to George W. Jackson, and they were copied into a ledger used for cemetery records. The minutes read in part:

> "on motion elected Mr. James Baucom Chairman > elected M. F. Britain Sec-Pro Tem
> on motion elected three directors—Geo. W. Guyette G. A. Gregory John T. Britain
> Geo. W. Jackson Sec. Geo. W. Hayes Treasurer"

Names were given of men in the community who made contributions toward a fund to be used for the cemetery. The names listed were as follows: Thomas Baucom, Levy Sallee, I. J. Thurman, James Baucom, Moses Nelson, Joseph Jackson, Geo. W. Jackson, Geo. W. Hayes, M. F. Britain, Baldin Bros., E. H. Britain, Ada Phelps, Geo. W. Oneal, Geo. W. Guyette. A total of $3.95 was collected. Amounts paid out during the next several months were also given. One item of expense was "for work done on yard $1.50". (No information was given on other expense items.)

In 1888, an addition to the cemetery was purchased from Frederick Ottendorf for the sum of $133.30 "in hand paid by T. W. Wade, T. M. Britain and I. J. Thurman Trustees of the Wade Chapel Burying Ground." The addition, which extends from the original cemetery to the road at the south line of the 40-acre tract, contains approximately 3.3 acres "to be used for church and cemetery purposes." Ervie Wade, who has been sexton of the cemetery for many years, has a certified copy of the deed showing transfer of the land, as well as other old records pertaining to the burial ground. On file in the Recorder's Office is a quit claim deed, also made in 1888, by which Frederick Ottendorf conveyed the plot of the original cemetery to the trustees. In this deed, the measurements are given as 213 feet by 250 feet instead of 11 poles by 14½ poles, as stated in earlier deeds.

At the time the land was bought for the addition, there was a fence made of field rocks at the south boundary of the tract. There is nothing to indicate the line between the original cemetery and the addition, but it is near the grave of William Nelson, who was the first person buried in the new part. He died in 1894. About 1900, young pine trees were planted to border the east-west driveway that had been laid out across the addition to the cemetery. These, and other pines that were planted at the same time, were donated from a nursery located at the north edge of Republic. In 1913, additional pine trees were bought and set. A shelter house was built in the northwest part of the new area, but this building was removed after the present cement-block chapel was erected. The chapel, which was begun in 1907, was made possible by donations of cash and labor from interested parties. The chapel has been used for funerals, programs on Decoration Day and business meetings pertaining to the cemetery. The first funeral service in the new building was held in March, 1909, for the baby of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Batson.

In early years, the burial spaces on the east side of the original graveyard were free and the graves were in rows, with no limit to the number of spaces a family could reserve. In 1918, a price of $2.50 each was set on grave plots in this section. The west side of the old cemetery and the new area were laid off in lots. The first lots south of the east-west driveway, which were laid off in the early 1900's, sold for $5.00 per lot.

Records were not available of meetings held by those interested in Wade Chapel Cemetery between 1885, when the association was organized, and 1909. Minutes of the annual business meetings from 1909 through 1928, give names of directors elected during that period, each director serving one or more terms of three years. The following directors were named: T. W. (Tom) Wade, Marshall Jackson, Cale Etheridge, W. O. (Wes) Wade, Marion Gardner, Cale Thurman, W. S. (Billy) Miller, M. F. (Mark) Britain, Ervie Wade, Frank Laney. W. G. (Will) Gilliland, who was secretary of the cemetery association in 1909, continued in that capacity until 1949. W. L. (Luther) Wade, treasurer of the association in 1909, served until poor health forced his retirement in 1931. Jerry Wade acted as treasurer for several months, followed by Hershel Brown, who served for 15 years. In 1947, Frank Comisky was elected to the office and has continued to serve as treasurer to the present time. Information above was taken from records held by the secretary of the cemetary association, Frank Comisky.

About the first of the century, one Sunday in May was designated as an annual Decoration Day at Wade Chapel Cemetery and the practice has been continued. In early days, many families who visited the graveyard on that day took basket dinner. A barrel of water that was hauled to the yard and placed in a shady spot, provided drinking water for the crowd. A memorial sermon by a visiting minister and a program of songs and recitations by children and adults were well attended, but lately, sermon and program have been discontinued. Decoration Day in 1909 was of special interest to those who had planned and worked to make the chapel a reality, since the building was dedicated on that day. Decoration Day Service (afternoon session) on May 16, 1909, was as follows:

Audience called together by choir
Recitation by Daisy Gilliland
Recitation by Martha Brown
Music by choir
Recitation by Florence Lafollette
Declamation by Truman White
Oration by Homer Gilliland
Music by choir
Address by Reverend Crauley
Music by choir
Address by Reverend Petty

Music by choir
A recess of ten minutes was then taken
After recess the audience was called together by choir
Dedication of building—Reverend Galbreath officiating
Music by congregation
Benediction by Reverend Petty

For many years, little care was given the graveyard and oftentimes some portions were overgrown with blackberry briars and other wild growth. About the time the addition was purchased, new interest was taken in the graveyard and the unwanted growth was removed. Money derived from sale of lots through the years, cash donations and donations of labor have made it possible to improve the cemetery and to give it regular care. A small sink-hole near the shelter house was filled with rocks, clay and rubbish, then was leveled and covered with good top soil. Since those were "horse and buggy days", a "hitch-rack" was built, beginning near the road and extending for a distance along the west line. It was decided at the business meeting in 1913 that a flower garden be "maintained for the use and benefit of the yard".

The annual clean-up day at the cemetery was begun in 1918, when those attending the business meeting voted to designate a day in April "to work on the yard". A piano for the chapel was purchased in 1948 and electricity was brought into the building in 1955. The old tool shed was replaced about 1957 by one made of limestone, and a new fence was built on the south boundary of the cemetery in 1962.

Wade Chapel Cemetery was the final resting place of the following Confederate and Union Army veterans: Milton Hopper, Joseph Hayes, Caleb Thurman, Harrison Souder, Jackson McDaniel, John Green, George Guyette, Robert Nelson, John Lile, W. G. Brittain, J. L. Carskaddon, Benson Wade, George Gregory, John Sallee. (This list may not be complete.) Also, veterans from later wars are buried there. It is not known who kept the first records of burials in the graveyard, but M. F. (Mark) Britain, who lived on adjoining property from 1872 until 1888, kept such records for many years. Ervie Wade's records show that there have been 426 burials in the 14 rows of graves on the east side of the original cemetery plot. In recent years, few new graves have been added to this section, in which the first burials were made, but many vacant spaces are available. There is no record of the total number of graves in Wade Chapel Cemetery.

The original cemetery and the addition bought in 1888 have a total measurement of 250 feet by 790 feet. In 1946, a second addition was purchased for the sum of $550.00. This tract, acquired from Ruby Britain, contains three acres, more or less, and extends along the entire west side of the other two sections of the cemetery. The first person buried in the second addition was Ethel Day, who was an accident victim in 1962.

Klingen, Germany to Opportunity in America, Balzel & Polsel to Paulsel & Paulsell, ONE FAMILY'S ODYSSEY

by Lee Paulsel
Summer, 1989

The world owes all its onward impulses
to men ill at ease.
– NATHANIEL HAWTHORNE

The Rhein River begins in a grassy meadow of the Alps in Switzerland. This tiny stream gathers ever more water from other streams as it flows through the countryside into Germany and becomes a mighty river. Finally reaching the Atlantic Ocean at Rotterdam, The Netherlands, the Rhein becomes a part of a greater water that washes both Europe and America.

So too does this family history.

More than the story of one family name, this history parallels the great Protestant Reformation started by Martin Luther, the early settlement of the New World, and the great Western Expansion of America. This is your story and also a story of America.

The earliest trace of our family begins with Benedict Balzel who was a resident of Klingen in the Rheinland-Pfalz region in Southwestern Germany. According to my researcher, the name, Benedict, indicates Swiss origin at the time of the early 1700's. He was probably a herdsman of cattle as indicated by the sale of a meadow in 1738. The borders of Switzerland and Germany were ambiguous at the time and so were the national identities. Benedict's last name was also spelled "Baltzel" on some documents, indicating a lack of literacy on the part of the writer and/or the subject.

The literacy problem and various spelling plague this effort of family history until the present day as we shall see. Also, last names were reserved for royalty until about three hundred years before this period. When adopted, they usually reflected the trade, geographic origin or simply the son of someone such as Johnson or even Paulson. Purely subjective, but "Balzel" may be a German phonetic of "Basel", the Swiss city on the border of Germany and France about 100 miles upstream on the Rhein. It should be noted here that in the German language, "B" and "P" are interchangeable. Another possible origin lies in Balzel or Baltzel as a derivative of Balthasar - the traditional but not documented name of one of the three Wise Men of Christ's birth, whose bones were brought to Cologne, Germany from Milan, Italy in the year 1164. (Authenticity of existence of this individual, and much more, the remains, is very much in doubt, but the name of tradition has lasted.)

Benedict and his wife, Anna Barbara, had a son, born around 1704 who was known both as Hans Peter Baltzle and also Johann Peter Balsell. (Notice again the lack of consistency in record keeping.) On January 16, 1725, in the town of Klingen, Peter married Anna Barbara Fanner, daughter of master baker Matthias Fenner and his wife also named Anna Barbara. The records show that her father had died before 1725, and that she was born January 6, 1712. (Note the young age of 13 for marriage, common for that time.) Her widowed mother married Thomas Vietz of Capellen, but there is no record of children by that marriage. The Fenners or Fanners as you will, were long settled in Klingen as evidenced by the recorded death of Elisabeth, Jacob Fenner's widow, who died January 24, 1715 at age 84.

Benedict Baltzel is recorded as having died before August, 1716. His widow died March 12, 1737, and is listed as being of "60 years and several months." Peter Baltzel had a younger brother, Hans Jacob, born in 1711. Jacob married an Eva Catharina around 1734, and had unnamed children recorded in Klingen between 1735 and 1752.

Some notes about the town and area of Klingen: When I discovered that our family had originated there, my wife and I visited the village as part of a European trip in 1985. Klingen is a village of about 800 people that is about 15 miles Southwest of Speyer, a city of 50,000. It is so small that it can be found on only very large scale maps. Klingen is on the "Weinstrasse" and has a delightful winery just across the street from an old Protestant Lutheran church that our ancestors must have worshiped in. Cemeteries as we know them did not exist in the 1700's, except for royalty and high clergy, so there are no grave markers to study. The present villagers know little of area history before World War II. A school master who was born in Munich and commutes to work in Speyer was a most gracious host during our visit.

The area was the birthplace of the Protestant Reformation in 1517. Martin Luther was called to the Diet (or Parliament) of Worms in 1521 to defend his beliefs. Worms is only 20 miles North of Speyer. It was there that he said, "Man justifies himself by faith, not by the workings of the church's law." Under orders of Emperor Charles V, the Diet of Worms issued its edict, never fully enforced, that "no further innovations are possible in the Christian faith." Six princes of the German part of the Holy Roman Empire and representatives of fourteen "free" or independent cities went to Speyer to protest this edict. Their protest gave name to the new beliefs - Protestant.

The old Empire was growing weak, and the authority of the Emperor too, so the princes had developed enough converts within their states and cities to force the Peace of Augsburg in 1555. The main gain of that conference was the precept, in Latin, "Cujus regio ejus religio" - "The state shall be supreme in its choice of the religious faith of its people." Soon after, two thirds of the German people were converted to Protestantism.

The Catholic Church, known as a French institution at that time because its seat was then in Avignon, France, responded strongly. So did Catholic countries such as Spain, France, and eastern Germanic states such as Bohemia and Austria. The early successes of Protestants were somewhat negated by internal dissension. The Catholic League, headquartered in Bavaria, and the Protestant Union, headquartered in the Palatinate city of Speyer began the bloody Thirty Years War in 1618. Starting as a German civil war, most of the countries of Europe became involved, first for religious ideals, but degenerating to greed for land and power. By the time the war ended with the Peace of Westphalia in 1648, a full third of the German population had been killed.

The peace was short lived as the ambitious Sun King, Louis XIV, tried to enlarge France by taking the Palatinate area as part of his war to oust the Spaniards from the Netherlands. As late as 1689, French troops devastated the city of Speyer and the countryside including Klingen. The location is only 50 miles from France and controls access to the Rhein, the main water highway of central Europe. This area was the scene of many bitter rivalries of culture, language, religion and desire to dominate a rich farming region.

Only the defeat of the French-Bavarian army at Blenheim in 1704 secured the borders for Germany. In 1713, Frederick William of Prussia became King Frederick I. He started the German states and cities on the road to unity. His cousin, William Hanover of Orange, great grandson of James I of England, became King George I of England in 1714 as the monarchy was reestablished there. Thus you can see the English and German connection that was to influence the Colonies of the New World.

At the death of Frederick I in 1740, Frederick William II assumed the throne of Prussia as King Frederick II. His reign saw the unification of most of the independent Germanic states into a modern political nation, Germany. Frederick II abolished the last vestiges of the old Emperor system. He became known as Frederick the Great to history. As a benign despot, prosperity came to all Germany. The cost was continuous war, such as the War of Austrian Succession in 1740. He allowed emigration to the New World as an escape valve to control people who chafed under his iron fist ways of unifying Germany.

Peter and Anna Barbara Balzel had three daughters, Anna Barbara, (again!), born September 2, 1727, Anna Catharina, born August 26, 1731, and Anna Maria, born September 27, 1743. They also had a son, Johann Peter, born January 10, 1742, in the town of Thaleischweiler. Anna Barbara and Peter moved there after 1735, presumably after selling the above mentioned meadow in 1738. Thaleischweiler is a not charming town. Located about 30 miles Northwest of Klingen, it suffered much destruction in World War II as a result of being along a main road to France and serving the shoe manufacturing city of Pirmasens. Anna Barbara died in this town on an unrecorded date. Peter Balzel remarried to Anna Maria Dorn, May 12, 1744 according to immigration records. She was the daughter of Theodor Dorn von Muhlbach (Hohmuhlbach, Krs. Pirmasens, Pfalz). Their religion was Lutheran, common to that region of its origin in Germany. In Fredrich Kerbs' book on German immigrants, he lists this group from Thaleischweiler as a list of "Auswanderer nach den Nordamerikanischen Kolonien im Lutherischen Kirchenbuch von Thaleischweiler," or roughly, "Emigrant into North American Colonies (listed) in the Lutheran Church Book of Thaleischweiler."

German settlements began in America in 1735, and were mostly in southern Pennsylvania and Maryland. In fact, there was a settlement near Frederick, Maryland, known as "Neu Germania" or, New Germany. In any event, the move to Thaleischweiler must not have been profitable. Perhaps wars or the threat of wars discouraged Peter and Anna Maria. At the time the Balzel family left for Neu Germania in the English Colonies, wars large and small were going on all around Germany. Greed through the guise of religious intolerance was the root of this unhappy time. In the English colonies, one could farm or ply one's trade with only a minor threat from Indian depredations. Cheap land, mild climate and relative freedom encouraged these two and their family to make the awesome journey across the Atlantic to a New World. Perhaps also, I like to think, the death of Johann Sebastian Bach devastated them in 1750.

We can appreciate our ancestors' decisions to leave the Devil known for a Devil unknown when we find the shortest time to cross the Atlantic was about seven weeks, with the typical time, eight to ten weeks. Twelve weeks in crossing was not uncommon. Planning for provisions was chancy with deprivation a routine expectation. Some captains of ships were known for cruelty, and death was a routine companion on these voyages. Ship records reveal almost no one who crossed the Atlantic as a tourist.

With courage and little else, the Balzel family arrived at Penn's Landing in Philadelphia, Colony of Pennsylvania, on August 18, 1750, aboard the "schiff," Saint Andrew, a galley capable of holding as many as 400 souls. (Research shows this ship transporting German immigrants from 1734 to 1752 in nine voyages.) The Captain of the ship was Robert Brown, and the voyage had originated at Rotterdam, The Netherlands (Holland), with a stop at Cowes, England. The ship manifest shows their name as Balssel, and Peter as a "Burger zu Thaleischweiler." Their children who accompanied them were listed as kinder: Johann Jacob, born September 10, 1745, and Elisabetha Barbara, born September 24, 1748. The number of passengers on this voyage were numbered at 279. As an almost deliberate attempt to confuse descendants, one list of passengers spells the last name as "Peter Balsam" on the manifest - but remember the printed records we see are taken from sometimes barely legible hand script.

We are fortunate to have any information of this kind as 324 ships arrived at Philadelphia with German immigrants between 1727 and 1775, but records of only 193 have been found even though this was a requirement of docking at William Penn's colony. Even more fortunate is the docking at Philadelphia, which required written records - elsewhere from Boston to Charleston, immigrants, usually not Germans, were admitted without any record at all! In 1750, 15 ships bearing immigrants docked in Philadelphia, and the maximum number for this period was 22 in 1749. (Sources: Pennsylvania Historical Society in Philadelphia, seen June 20, 1989.)

The Balzel family was listed as "naturalized" in Baltimore in 1761. (This was the clue that led to Germany, as British subjects did not need to be naturalized.)

Apparently the whole family including distant relatives moved to Frederick County, Maryland, to the settlement of Neu Germania. Our records of the daughters of the first marriage end as we find Anna Barbara married to a Barthel Schumacher, Anna Catharina married to a Melchoir Haffner, and Anna Maria married to an Adam Eckhart (Acer in his naturalization.) Some of the family signed with a "mark" such as "#", and there begins trouble for tracing family history. The son, Johann Peter, is listed as Polsel. Perhaps this is a British immigration officer's phonetic spelling of the German pronunciation. Perhaps not, but we may never know. The land records also list Peter Balzel, Sr.'s wife as Mary Balzer now. The names, Baltzel and Beltzer, show up when describing the same family.

Other records of early German emigration to America contain similar names, but the consistency of first names, ages, land purchases and sales, etc., lead us to conclude the "Balzel" family is our direct ancestor. However, on the unlikely supposition that another family is directly ancestral, we will briefly quote the obscure sources in the following paragraph.

Immigration records of Germans coming to Philadelphia in the eighteenth century reveal Johann Yerick and Katharine Paulse coming to Philadelphia on the Johnson Galley of London, arriving September 18, 1732, David Crockatt, Commander. The forgoing comes from the book, "Pennsylvania German Pioneers," by Strassburger. The move north into Pennsylvania, the names that were not passed on generationaly and the out of time sequence make this an unlikely ancestral source. From the book, "Eighteenth Century Emigrants, Vol. I, The Northern Kraichgau," by Annette Burgert, and published by the Pennsylvania German Society, we learn of Hans Jacob Bausel, baptized March 23, 1687. He was the son of Hans and Elisabetha Pausel of Eppingen, Kraichgau region. Hans Married June 30, 1711 to Anna Catharina Schwab, and had the following children - Hans Jorg (March 25, 1712 to July 19, 1712), Apollonia (July 19, 1713 to December 18, 1714), Agnesa Barbara (born February 5, 1716), Johann Georg (born June 22, 1718), and George Jacob (born January 8, 1721, died "young"). Hans Jacob and Anna Catharina Bausel emigrated to Philadelphia, September 21, 1727, with their surviving children, Agnesa and Johann, on the ship, William and Sarah, William Hill, Commander. They were a part of 109 Palatines from Germany. They apparently settled in Pennsylvania, their son married and his son and his wife are listed as Jacob and Barbara, selling land at Jumping Run, Pennsylvania, August 10, 1753. Again, the same problems preclude this family as direct ancestors.

Finally, from the book, "Pennsylvania German Pioneers," we also learn of a Jacob and Carl Baltzel arriving on the ship, Chance, on November 1, 1763, out of Rotterdam and Cowes, England. Perhaps these are the distant relations we find in the below mentioned census of 1790.

Study after study in demographics show families moving west along latitude lines. That is to say, if a family originally settled in Connecticut, their descendants were most likely to move to Michigan and thence to Oregon. Likewise, a family that settled in South Carolina would see descendants in Georgia and Texas. (Source: Scientific American, July, 1988.) For the Paulsel family, the given names of ancestors, Jacob, Peter and Henry, were passed on for several generations. Lacking contrary evidence, we will continue with the supposition of Balzel ancestry, and hope someone comes up sometime with "hard copy" documentation of what can now only be assumed from other documentation.

Younger brother Jacob apparently joined the family in Maryland in 1752. His wife may have been named Magdalena Hoffman or Elisabetha (last name not known). He apparently had a son who died within a year of birth. Land records, now in Annapolis, record the sale of a lot in Frederick Town on May 3, 1769 to a Peter Balsell from Jacob Balsell. This Jacob may be the same person as above, or may be son, Jacob, born in 1745. In any event, Jacob is listed a being a tailor in the contract.

The inconsistency in spelling is understandable, but very frustrating to research. Fortunately the quantity of records is great and allows continuity if common sense is applied to the effort. We are helped by the fact that the family belonged to the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, Maryland, which kept excellent records of family baptisms, communions, etc.

Two daughters were born to Peter and Anna Maria Baltzel in the New World - Maria Magdalena, born April 17, 1752, and Maria Margaretha, born about October 6, 1754. At age 20, Peter Balzel, Jr., married Catharina Ruesel (or Ruehl or Ruewel) on February 23, 1762. His uncle, Jacob, remarried twice - to a widow, Margaret Schley, on November 30, 1766, and to Charlotta Christ on January 11, 1787. (His last name changes here to Balszel, another variant.) The feminine names are beautiful in sound; I wish I could know more about them.

Peter Baltzel, Sr. is listed as becoming a naturalized citizen of Maryland Colony in 1761. Young Peter and his father dealt heavily in land about the area. The records show them taking "patents" on 150 acres in 1752, 780 acres in 1753, 910 acres in 1761. Numerous records involve the family until 1779. The first census of the United States in 1790 for Frederick County, Maryland, still shows a Jacob Balsel, adult free male, and one female living with head of household. This probably is the younger son who came in 1750 or the younger brother of Peter. Also, the census shows a George Jacob Baltzel family consisting of two adult free males, four free males under age 16, and two females. These people of the 1790 census are probably closely related to each other, but distantly related to the present family.

No records show family participation in the War of the American Revolution. A Peter Balzler served as a private in the German Battalion of the Continental Troops, but no records connect this individual with our family in Maryland or show any further records at all. History shows that the American colonists were highly divided on this issue, and although "Hessians" or Prussians fought as mercenaries in the war, most settlers wanted to stay out of the fight and farm their land. That our family did not participate is nothing to be either proud of or ashamed of - it is simply an unemotional fact.

Peter Balsell, the elder, died and his estate was probated on August 19, 1779. His son signed as next of kin as Peder Baltzel in German script along with Barthel Schumacher. His wife, Mary Balsell, died soon after with her estate probated November 14, 1779. She showed a balance on hand of 2,725 American Pounds, but no distribution to heirs. Interesting.

Peter Balsell, Jr. left Frederick, Maryland for Shenandoah County, Virginia, in 1775. The records indicate his wife was named Catherine. We may have a "missing link" here with a son born and not recorded elsewhere. In 1785, land was sold there under the name of Henry Peter Polsel. A census of the same year shows "8 White Souls" living at his homestead. Unfortunately, there is no further comment on identities, etc.

Henry married in adjacent Pendleton County to Susanna Peninger, daughter of Henry Peninger, (German), according to county records, on October 20, 1798. His wife relinquished her dower upon marriage. The book, "History of Pendleton County, West Virginia," published in 1910, states that Henry Peninger died in 1815, and had the following children - William John, Elizabeth, Catharine, Mary, Barbara, Anna E. and Susanah (sic), the latter presumably the younger. (Pendleton County is now a county in West Virginia as a result of the Civil War division.)

Henry Peter Polsel's home was near the present town of New Market. His name also appears on some records as Peter Palsel and Peter Pausel. The spelling grows closer to the modern day variants. He is listed as having laid out 32 lots for the town of New Market, so he must have continued his business of trading in land after leaving Maryland.

This was the site of a major battle during the Civil War, but by then, none of our family was living there. An unfortunate consequence of this battle was the destruction of records that could be useful in reconstruction of this phase of family history. The birth dates of children named would make Peter Balzel, Jr. a very old man of 68 to have the youngest child. So perhaps destroyed records held the birth and death dates needed. Birth certificates were not a requirement in the United States until the 1840's. Maybe some old bible will reveal the answer. A physical search of the area cemeteries in 1984 by my wife and me revealed no grave markers with spelling close to Balzel or Paulsel.

Three children were born to Peter and Susanna. The oldest child was Henry P. Paulsel, Jr., but the date of birth is unknown. Next was Jacob Paulsel, born April 8, 1805. Last was Catharine Paulsel, born about 1810. Please note the contemporary spelling of the last name and the Anglicization of first names with this generation. This seems typical of second and third generations of immigrants who, under peer pressure of the new environment, adapt to the common denominators present in their lives.

Henry Peter Paulsel next shows up as buying land in Greene County, (now Green County), Kentucky, on July 17, 1813, but apparently remaining in Virginia.

In 1821, two other names enter our family history, in a way that was very unusual for the times. In Pendleton County, Virginia, Peter Stone petitioned the state legislature for a divorce decree on November 13, 1821. This was only one of two such from Pendleton County prior to the Civil War and was the only way to get a divorce then. In the petition, Henry Stone stated that he had married Mary (Elizabeth) Smith of Fauquire County, Virginia in 1789 or 1790, lived 23 or 24 years "in perfect harmony," and had fourteen children still alive out of twenty. He goes on to swear that "nine or ten years ago"...he "had good reason to suspect the said Mary of incontinency (sic)." Further, "unwilling to become the public panderer of his own shame...feeling a tender solecitude (sic) for the reputation of his children, he was induced still to live with her."..."She keptup (sic) an illicit correspondence with a certain Henry Paulsel and others." Poor Peter Stone goes on to say that Mary "three years ago eloped carrying with her two of his best horses and about $300 in cash, and now lives in Indiana in a state of open and shameless adultrey (sic) with a person unknown to your petitioner." The petition was sworn to by witnesses who were neighbors.

The foregoing is corroborated by the 1810 U.S. Census listing Susanna Paulsel as living alone with daughter, Catharine. So Henry Paulsel's marriage lasted about ten years, and he spent the next few years living in the Virginia counties of Shenandoah and Pendleton, making a fool of himself and a cuckold of Peter Stone. Who said family histories had to be dull?

Henry moved, perhaps with the aid of a musket pointed at his back, to Greene County, Kentucky, in 1820. This is at variance with Peter Stone's petition, but in line with the facts of the U.S. Census. It is likely that after three years absence, the public shame of the events were such that he either did not know or care regarding the whereabouts of his ex wife and the man who made him a fool in the eyes of his neighbors.

Henry Paulsel took Mary Elizabeth with him and made an honest woman of her by marrying her on May 12, 1823. The 1820 U.S. Census for Greene County, Kentucky, shows one female, age 26 to 45, living with Henry. Quite an age gap! Also, one male, age under 10, and one male, age over 45, neither named, are listed as part of this household. Henry Paulsel agreed to pay his wife, Susanna, $200.00, a considerable sum for the period, and sold slaves to an I. Dyer, her agent. Henry sold his remaining land to Abraham Savage. This was in late 1820, and apparently the settlement was made after he moved on to Kentucky. There is no record of a divorce between Henry and Susanna, so it is possible, if not probable, that Henry was a "double dipper," that is, a bigamist.

The slaves names are given as Sally and two daughters, Nancy and Polly. Also, Clay, and his son, Reuben, are named. Please note that in the European tradition of just a couple of centuries ago, lesser humans such as serfs and slaves are not given last names. The slaves were to the held for the benefit of Susanna Paulsel and her children, Henry, Jacob, and Catharine, until they each arrived at age 21. At that age, 2/3 of the slaves' value would pass to the children with Susanna retaining 1/3.

Henry's wedded bliss in Kentucky did not last long, for he died in late 1823, with his will recorded October 2, 1823. (Book 2, Page 97) He left his wife, Elizabeth, one thousand dollars and 137 acres on Little Russels Creek. He named a son, John, in the will, and "other children", but not by name. John was probably his son by Elizabeth and the other children by Susanna. Witnesses to the will were John Biggs and Amasa Webb. A final inventory on December 5, 1823, listed $1,342.25 in personal property, a considerable sum in days when one dollar would buy what forty will today. A philanderer Henry Peter Paulsel may have been, but he apparently was a shrewd businessman as well.

Marriage records of Greene County, Kentucky, show William Curry marrying one Elizabeth Paulrel, (sic), December 3, 1824, the Reverend Thomas Skaggs officiating. No proof, but the spelling is exactly ours except for the 'r', and given her history, it is likely that Mary Elizabeth did not choose to live without men. Also, all writing was by hand then, and errors of application and retrieval are common. So, Henry Peter's widow likely married again, and this record is likely hers. Unless further records surface, this is the last mention of her.

Son, John, perhaps born in Virginia, (now West Virginia), and certainly raised in Kentucky is not documented beyond the will of his father. Since no trace of him can be found through descendants, he most probably a. died as a youth, b. married, but had only daughters which are hard to trace in our name culture, or c. married and had no children. Future research may reveal more about this particular John Paulsel.

PAULSELL

A second Paulsell family appears here at a time of family turmoil. Correspondence with Paulsells who live mainly in northern states reveals a second John Paulsell who was born in Greene County, Tennessee around 1800. He became a Reverend in the Methodist Episcopal church, and sired four children - Everet Delaney, Armenius Calvin, Oliver Patton, and Martha Ann. All but Martha Ann had large families, and numerous descendants live today, mostly in the Northern U.S. The records of the northern Paulsells indicate his father was named David, but date and place of birth is not noted. Our present spelling, Paulsel and Paulsell, indicate we are blood related, but it seems more likely now that our families have different origins and the spellings are a coincidence unless a connection can be found between David Paulsell and the Balzel - Polsel group extant prior to 1800. This is a further avenue for an interesting genealogical exploration. The most conceivable connection relates to Henry Peter Paulsel of Pendleton County, Virginia.

More of interest on this northern Paulsell group - Reverend John Paulsell was ordained in Tennessee, and in the fall of 1837, moved with his family to Illinois while on the way to Missouri. He died enroute in 1838 while still in Illinois, and was buried by the side of the road. His widow, Mary Ann (Bailey), continued on and settled in Laclede County, Missouri. She later married a Mr. Sands, and died February 19, 1863, in Rolla, Missouri. I wonder if they knew of the other Paulsels living also in Missouri at that time.

Armenius Calvin Paulsell's life is well documented and interesting. He was born in Greene County, Tennessee, on January 26, 1832. He apparently stayed with his mother to Missouri, and worked as a clerk in Springfield. In 1853, at the age of 21, took a team of oxen and moved to Tuolumne County, California, a high Sierra county in the Gold Rush country. His was the first marriage recorded in that county, to Almira Hartford Gardenhire on July 27, 1854. A. C. Paulsell bought a 700 acre farm, and built up a stock raising enterprise that later encompassed 3,500 acres. He sold the land and moved to nearby Stanislaus County, California.

Armenius C. Paulsell lived in the town of Stockton, and was elected to the California Legislature in 1872, and served 1873 to 1874. A well thought of Democrat, he was nominated to be Governor at the convention in 1890 at San Jose. One of his supporters said of him, "A. C. Paulsell would never be found surrounded by any limited circle of friends. He has the moral courage to give free expression to his views, whether he be in the majority or minority." It was written that he lost the governorship by one vote, although it is not clear whether this was at the convention or in general election.

After the legislature, he was appointed State Harbor Commissioner by Governor Stoneman, and served for seven years, living in San Francisco. Here, he became engaged in the wholesale grain trade on a large scale. A. C. Paulsell was about to receive the honor of appointment as Superintendent of the Mint in San Francisco, but died suddenly of kidney failure. This happened at the home of his son, John Jefferson Paulsell, March 23,1893, in Stockton. (Reference: History of the State of California, J. M. Guinn, 1904, pages 1247 - 1249.)

San Joaquin County, California records show Americus C. Paulsell dying at age 61, and buried March 27, 1893. The same records show Armenius C. Paulsell, age 2, buried in 1891, Lee Young Paulsell, age 8, also buried In 1891, and Mary C. Paulsell, age 13, buried in 1891. (Were the children victims of a terrible accident or disease? What a tragedy to lose three children in one year!) None of the other nine children are listed as having heirs, but John Jefferson is noted as being a clergyman in San Francisco. His widow was buried October 10, 1910, age 75, in San Jose.

Well, back to the southern Paulsels, who are our direct forebears.

Children of Henry and Susanna Paulsel stayed in Virginia long enough to get married. Henry P. Paulsel, Jr. married Catharine Newman on September 7, 1825. Her father was Samuel Newman. Jacob Paulsel Married Sarah C. Hull on October 13, 1829, the daughter of William Hull. Catharine Paulsel married Joseph Boggs on June 28, 1827. All these marriages took place in Pendleton County, now West Virginia. A glance at a map will reveal this county is adjacent to Shenandoah County, Virginia. Land transactions in two counties by one family living in the area for forty years are entirely logical in probability.

But the big land "Out West" must have beckoned. Land wore out with one crop use such as cotton, and one moved on. The reasons for moving could have been many or few, fear or hope. We will probably never know. Some family records indicate Jacob moved to Missouri via Kentucky with Daniel Boone, but nothing in the history of Daniel Boone or the areas he lived substantiate this. By 1830, all three children, their families, and mother, Susanna, had moved to Cole County, Missouri. Please note the irony of this badly split family moving to Missouri separately and being separated by only one county, Miller. Numerous records document their existence there.

Susanna Paulsel died in 1844. Her will was filed for probate on August 14, 1844, and named Henry P. Paulsel and Jacob Paulsel as administrators. The inventory of the estate was filed November 7, 1844, and listed five slaves, cattle, sheep, hogs, 14 acres of corn, etc. The address of Susanna was given as Box 17, #606 A. The inventory was taken by Thomas Miller, R. H. Jones, and B. Read.

The 1840 census of Cole County shows Henry's age as 35 to 40, his wife as 25 to 30, an unnamed daughter age 10 to 15, and another unnamed daughter under 5 years. Henry must have died in 1849, for his estate was filed for probate on November 12, 1849. W. F. Fowler was named administrator. The 1850 census lists Catharine Paulsel, age 42, whose address is "in the Hotel of Michael Newman," and born in Virginia. The Newman name may indicate some of her relatives before marriage into the Paulsel family moved also from Virginia to Missouri.

Catharine Paulsel Boggs and Her husband, Joseph, are listed in the 1840 census with three children. The 1850 census is somewhat more complete, listing Joseph Boggs, age 47, farmer, Catharine Boggs, age 40, Henry P. Boggs, age 20, James Boggs, age 7, and Margaret Ann, age 1 to 12 (?).

Jacob Paulsel, born April 8, 1805, in Pendleton County, Virginia, married Sarah C. Hull as previously stated. Sarah was born October 10, 1812, and died November 8, 1830, in Cole County, Missouri, barely one year after her marriage to Jacob. Jacob then married Betsy Ann Dyer September 27, 1832. They had one son, William Henry, who died September 14, 1833. Betsy Ann died the following year on August 18, 1834. Next, Jacob married Sarah Allen Furgusan in Callaway County, Missouri. (One record gives her last name as Smith.) She was born May 29, 1816, and died March 16, 1874, age fifty-seven. Her mother's maiden name was Collard.

Jacob and Sarah had the following children: Phillip Miller Paulsel, born August, 1837, died August, 1865, at Sour Lake, Texas, age 28, with no known children; John Robinson Paulsel, born October 27, 1838, died September 2, 1856, age 18; Mary Susan Paulsel, born May 24, 1840, died September 15, 1841; James Hart Paulsel, born April 9, 1842, died September 16, 1864, age 22 with no known children; Thomas Furgasan (or Ferguson) Paulsel, born September 14, 1845, married to Oma Dee Bartee October 19, 1896 - no Known Children - and died March 1, 1905 in Madisonville, Texas (Wife buried next to him in unmarked grave); Sarah Catharine Paulsel, born May 15, 1847; Josephine Paulsel born April 6, 1849; Edward Bates born February 15, 1851; and Emma Paulsel born and died July 23, 1853. Nine children. Very prolific.

Jacob apparently was a trader of land like his father. There are numerous records of land transactions in Cole County, Missouri, with and without his brother and brother-in-law's names. There is a record that indicates he was made overseer to build the road between Springfield and Versailles, Missouri, in 1835. The map would make Road C between the nearby capitol of Jefferson City and Versailles more likely as there is no direct connection between Springfield and Versailles. He was also known as a "teamster" or what would today be called a truck driver.

The Mexican territory of Texas won independence and become the Republic of Texas in 1836. In late 1845, Texas became a state in the United States. Much controversy surrounded this act of President Polk. Massachusetts voted, but did not ratify, a move to secede from the Union "if the slave state that improperly took independence from Mexico" were admitted. Yes, Massachusetts and Texas did not see things the same way then, either.

Jacob Paulsel must have waited to be sure that Texas was really going to be a part of the United States before moving, and whatever his reasons, did move to Texas in 1849 with his family. Alas, death, not good fortune awaited Jacob in Texas. Plying his trade as a mule team wagon driver, he was accidentally killed when his wagon ran over him on January 9, 1853, near La Grange, Texas, a community about 100 miles Northwest of Houston. (La Grange, unfortunately, will be best remembered for the infamous "Chicken Ranch" of the 1950's and 60's. This was the basis for the play and movie, "The Best Little Whorehouse In Texas.") Jacob was apparently buried at the place of death, and not in a cemetery as was the custom of the day involving accidental death.

Mother Sarah was left with children in this new state, and lived in the "Piney Woods" of Walker County, 75 miles North of Houston. She married a Lem Collard and helped raise his son, Tom. (No dates available for this part of family history.) A will filed February 2, 1853, in Fayette County, lists "two negroes" and perishable property with value or $1,115, but no land.

Now too, we see why the family history turns turgid at this point. The only child who lived long enough to bear children was Edward Bates, and he was not quite three years old when his father died. So this branch of Paulsel family history was told by Sarah to Edward from her own recollections told to her by Jacob. It would appear that Jacob was not overly proud of his own father's scarlet past and/or Sarah was ashamed too. So young Edward was told about his father of whom he could be proud, but not his grandfather whose memory was laid to rest. This era and beyond was the most difficult part of the genealogy research.

Dear Mrs. Nolan:

Forgive me for answering your letter of July 20 so late, but a variety of enterprises has kept me from devoting the time to properly respond. My afternoons have been spent in telemarketing for the Republican candidate to replace Jim Wright - you have to have an iron skin to do that job!

My feeling is that if and when we discover the father of David Paulsell, we will find the blood connection to Peter Balzel or Paulsel. But we cannot assume this until more facts are uncovered. Next - NO! NO! NO! I do NOT interpret Henry Peter Paulsel, nee Pausel, etc., to be the son of immigrant Peter Balzel, but rather the Grandson of same. The age of Peter, 68, almost certainly precludes this, and his son, Peter, Jr., who is less well known, is the likely link in this turgid part of family history. We, (I), am continually frustrated by lack of birth certificates, incomplete census records, destruction of New Market records during the Civil War, and lack of family history when Henry Peter's son, Jacob, died, leaving a three year old son to carry on the family name.

As to all the "Greene Counties," Nathaniel Greene of Vermont was a hero of the American Revolution, and many of the new states and territories so honored him. Many have changed the spelling to "Green" since then. "Hall County" is rampant from Georgia to Texas in my maternal history. "My" Paulsel branch lived briefly in Greene County, Kentucky, and "your" branch seems to have lived in Greene County, Tennessee. The Henry Paulsell buried in Greene County, Missouri, is likely the brother of my great, great grandfather, Jacob. I will investigate further.

If this letter accomplishes nothing more, it will clarify a little of the life of the notorious Henry Peter Paulsel, and also underline some of the frustrations of family research.

Yours Truly

Lee Paulsel
